Official Paper of Gila County.

If the democrats had won the last election with a statehood pledge in its national platform, who would think of begging Bryan to carry out that pledge? Is the promise of a party no longer worth anything? The republican party has made a promise, and put it in writing, to make Arizona a state, and for our part we don't feel like begging them to fulfill their promises, and Arizona is not big enough to make them do it—Our Mineral Wealth.

Have Patience in Mining.

Two of the most unfavorable symptoms in the mining fever, says the Western Mining World, are impatience and restlessness—the inordinate desire to hastily convert a promising prospect into a paying mine, and the hallucination that at some remote point or place the mineral conditions are more favorable. The mining interests of the country have suffered a great deal from these clearly definable mental conditions into which mining men are apt to fall. Impatience has wrecked more mining men and mining communities than almost any other one cause. Hasty development is likely to be expensive and unprofitable. The desire to make a mine before a claim has been properly prospected has so often resulted disastrously as to give the mining industry a speculative character to which it is not entitled. Prospectors and miners, like actors, often acquire a faith in a favorable destiny not justified by the conclusions of good judgment. Their money is often invested more on faith than on the findings upon which the preliminary steps of mine making are supposed to rest.

Even when all the conditions justify the attempt to create a producing mine, patience is essential to success. Once satisfied that his vein conforms to the proper mineral and geological conditions, the miner should, in the language of the street, "stay with it."

Impatience is often augmented by its twin symptom of restlessness that sees in the glorious elsewhere and beyond brighter prospects than can be hoped for in the present surroundings. Men who ought to know better suffer from this mineralogical complaint, which takes hold of the system whenever a case of indigestible impatience to get rich impairs the circulation of good impulses and effects the normal conditions of the mind. Thus it happens that so many well-to-do mining men overlook home opportunities for the attractions of the North Pole, as the case may be, dithering around "from post to pillar" in search of the hiding place of the fickle goddess of fortune. The dream of some golden Utopia takes possession of their mind and the mirage of coming triumphs fills the orbit of their vision. If wealthy they deprive the community or country in which they live of money, which, if invested at home, would double and treble itself in short order; if poor, they transfer themselves as productive factors of labor to the tinsel-trimmed elsewhere. Thus many prospectively prosperous mining camps are robbed of a fair opportunity to demonstrate their worth to the world.

The Miners' union of Troy is preparing to erect a union building to be used both as a lodge room and a reading room. General Manager Chas. H. Cutting, with characteristic liberality, has volunteered to furnish books and periodicals for the reading room. This step by the Miners' union is indicative of the miners' faith in the permanence of the Troy camp. They would not invest their funds in a union building if they did not see in the Troy mines some evidence that makes them believe the camp has a long and prosperous future before it. This fact strengthens our faith in the camp, for we believe no one is more competent to correctly interpret the underground indications in a mine than is the practical miner who has spent years in following underground indications to ore bodies.—Arizona Blade.

A Washington, D. C. dispatch says: The Indian office has completed the plans and specifications for a new dormitory to cost $15,000 at Fort Mohave, Ariz., and bids will be advertised for within a few days. It is also proposed, and plans have been formulated, to erect a new school plant at Keams' Canyon, Ariz., for the accommodation of 200 pupils on the Mogul

Indian reservation. Plans and specifications have also been prepared for the erection of a new stone dormitory, with a capacity of 100 pupils, and a water system, to increase the capacity of the Indian school at Fort Apache, Ariz., to 200 pupils. The total expenditures for buildings, water system, etc., will aggregate $150,000.

New Road to Pleasant Valley.

Work was begun last week by Geo. E. Shute, as superintendent, on the new road which is to connect the Upper Salt river valley with the Pleasant Valley and Holbrook road. About twenty miles of road will have to be built, which presents no serious difficulties. Very little excavating will be necessary and there will be only one grade of any consequence, and that not very steep, along the entire route. The county has contributed $450 toward the construction of this road and the balance will be made up by the people of Salt river valley and the Sierra Ancha and Pleasant valley. It is expected that the construction of this road will be the means of diverting nearly all the business of the Pleasant valley country from Holbrook to Globe, amounting to about $20,000 a year, and that cattle will also come this way for shipment, as there is abundance of feed and water along the route, while on the drive to Holbrook there is a stretch of fifty-five miles without water or grass. Application will be made for a mail route over the new road which will be much preferable to the present route from Payson to Pleasant valley.

Capt. H. Humphreys Read and Vincent P. Tompkins, largely interested in the Troy and Manhattan copper companies, were recently at Troy. In company with General Manager Cutting they viewed the country about Florence and south to Casa Grande. The Blade says: "It will be remembered that these gentlemen, in connection with other prominent stockholders in the Troy and Manhattan companies, a few months since, filed with the secretary of the territory a declaration of intention to build a railroad from Casa Grande to Troy via Florence. They were here looking over the situation with that object in view and left thoroughly impressed with the belief that the natural resources of this section, if developed would furnish a wonderful amount of traffic for a local railroad and make the enterprise an exceedingly profitable one. Being close and intelligent observers, they also saw that with a railroad leading through this valley and up the river, other great enterprises could be inaugurated and made a profitable success, and later on they will probably take up the question of a large custom reduction and power plant."

The increasing business at the post-office is a reliable indication of the improvement and growth of Globe. For the quarter ended September 30, the postal receipts were considerably larger than for the corresponding quarter of last year. On last Friday, Oct. 11, the number of money orders issued, both domestic and foreign, was greater than on any previous day in the history of the office. Postmaster Allison has a model office, and conducts the business in a manner entirely satisfactory to the public.

Joe Bandhauer, foreman at the Black Copper mine, sustained a painful injury last Friday. He was felling timbers, and in wielding a hand axe, it struck a knot in the timber and glancing, cut him on the inner side of the right leg above the knee-joint, severing an artery and injuring the leaders. Mr. Bandhauer was brought to town and taken to the home of C. W. Slack. He is attended by Dr. Collins, who hopes that no permanent injury will result from the wound.

A. Redewill of the well known firm of A. Redewill & Sons of Phoenix, dealers in musical instruments, who has been in town for several days, will leave in the morning for Phoenix. Mr. Redewill states that he has sold forty-two pianos in Globe and has not heard a complaint from a single purchaser. He reports business very good, especially in the mining camps.

Jake Spitz of Son Bros & Co. of San Francisco, importers of cutlery, pipes, stationery, etc., is among the commercial men in town this week. Mr. Spitz has been coming to Globe with considerable regularity for the past twenty-three years, and has been longer on the road than any other traveling man who covers Arizona.

The ladies of St. John's Guild will meet at the rectory Friday afternoon, October 19, 1901, at 2:30.
